Washington Comm ands Are Mandatory, Asserts J. Dunnigan

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 13.-(AP)-President Hoover was charged today by a New York Democratic leader with planning the Republican legislature investigation of the Democratic administration of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, possible opponent of Mr. Hoover in the presidential elec-

Senator John J. Dunnigan, chief of the Democratic forces in the upper legislative House, declared the "new slogan of the Republican party is 'Beat Roosevelt now instead of No-

Dunnigan said that "orders from Washington" were responsible for the introduction of the Republican resolution calling for a legislative in-quiry into each of the eighteen departments of the New York governor's administration. The resolution was adopted by the Senate Wednesday and set to the Lower House for concurrent action by the Republican majority there.

"The new triple play of the Republican party," said Dunnigan in a state-ment, "is Hoover and Mills to Macy to the Republican controlled legislature." Ogden Mills, secretary of the treasury, is viewed as one of New York's Republican spokesmen at the White House; W. Kingsland Macy is the state chairman of the Republican organization.

Every recent situation in the New York legislature has been construed by both Republicans and Democrats as relating to the move to nominate Governor Roosevelt for the presiwith using his quarrels with the leg-islature as a vehicle to get him the nomination; Democrats cite Republican opposition to the governor in the legislature as a move to block Roose-

Fernandez, resident of the region adjacent to the Buckhorn Bend sector of Monroe, admits that he moved to deep appreciation over the multitudinous phone calls that he and Mrs. Fernandez received some days ago when Buckhorn Bend loomed big in the public print due to the flood and levee protection there. Call after call came in to the Fernandez home to ascertain if the levee was still intact. "Isn't it wonderful how many friends we have and how kindly disposed they are to us?" Mr. Fernandez remarked to his wife. "They are so anxious lest we get wet." But the illusion passed when a little later a man's voice was heard over the phone: "Tell me, that Buckhorn Bend levee is broken ain't it?" came the interrogation. An affirmative answer was given. "They ain't a-goin' to try to mend it, are they?" with feverish interest. Again came the answer, this time in the negative. "Thank God, it will let

Former President Declares Program Calls For Gross Transfer Of Assets

Illegal

NEW ORLEANS Feb. 13 .- (AP)-Declaring that the transfer of the assets of the Opelousas-St. Landry Bank and Trust Company to the St. Landry Bank and Trust Company was illegal, Edward B. Dubisson, former president of the Opelousas-St. Landry Bank and Trust Company, has ap-

Court. In the District Court of St. Landry Parish Mr. Dubisson sought to have the reorganization of the bank set aside and to have J. S. Brock, state bank commissioner, liquidate the old bank's affairs in an orderly manner. Judge B. H. Pavy, of district court, dismissed the suit on the grounds that Huey P. Long, former governor, should not have been named a defendant in the suit.

The suit declared that the property of the old bank was transferred to the new illegally through the efforts of Brock and with the assistance of Long and seeks to have the transaction annulled.

The petition of Dubisson stated that at the time of the bank transfer some of the assets of the former bank were frozen, some depreciated and some worthless, but that the book value of assets over liabilities was $488,000 which it was said, would take care of potential losses and leave a substantial amount to stockholders.

CONNER WILL GO ON AIR TO PUT

Sales And Income Tax Measures

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 13.-(U.P.)-Governor Mike S. Conner will go on the air next week in an attempt to break a deadlock in the legislature over conflicting revenue programs, and to further the interests of the administration plan. The governor will speak Monday, 1:15 p. m. over the radio in the interests of his program calling for a come tax and no new nuisance taxes.

Speaker Thomas L. Bailey, an administration leader, took the floor of the House on a point of personal privilege Friday to deny a story carried in a Memphis morning paper which quoted "political talk" that the speaker was dissatisfied with the ways and means committee, which is holding open hearings on a revenue program of its own, and that the speaker would make drastic changes in the committee if he could reappoint it.

Meantime another revenue program was offered in the House by Representative Cowart, and was referred to the appropriations committee.

The Senate Friday passed a bill repealing exemption privileges granted on delinquent taxes until April 1.

Stage Is Given As 48.7 Ft. Today; Drops In Camden

The Ouachita River today continued a steady fall here and at all points above Monroe. The river stage here was 48.7 feet today, two-tenths of a foot below yesterday's stage, At Camden, Ark., the fall during the past 24 nours was three-tenths of an inch.

K. R. Young, United States engineer in charge of levee operations here, said today that condition of levees remained satisfactory. Only a small number of men are now engaged in levee work. These men are considered a "standby" force, ready for any quick work which may be necessary. No work of this nature is expected to develop, however.

Friendship! There is nothing in our environment which may so narrow or enlarge our lives as our choice of friends. The prodigal son chose the vain and shallow for his friends, and he soon found himself in the pigsty. The untutored fisherman of Galilee chose Jesus for his friend, and through that association became Peter the Apostle, one of the world's greatest religious leaders. Thoreau said of friendship, "It will make a man honest; it will make him a hero; it will make him a saint." Particular-ly beautiful is the friendship of Christian souls, knit together in warm, human love, and fired by love divine in a common, godly endeavor.

Dear Lord, help us to be worthy of the friendship of all whose souls reach upward. May we share the ennobling joys of friendship with many, and may we always be good friends with our God and with our better self.

"Strawberries and Cream" in bygone days was a term synonymous only with the final assurance that summer really has arrived. It meant that home-grown berries were on the market and had reached a price low enough so that those with ordinary food budgets could purchase what otherwise was a delicacy and a luxury.

In winter months a pint box of strawberries was a luxury, no less, for it cost probably 50 cents and possibly a dollar or more. The trade didn' bother to put them in the quart size containers.

Yesterday we found the most luscious strawberries, imaginable in sevof the market places and at such a low price that we venture to say, they will be served for desert in many, many Monroe homes to-

BROWNVILLE BAPTIST CHURCH J. B. Polk, Pastor

Referring to the prayer meeting called by the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Monroe, one remarked, 'How strange that the rains stopped that very day and the city of Monroe was saved." At that time, all were agreed that there was no hope of salvation from a disastrous flood except a cessation of rain. Let every one reach his own conclusions. If you have not done it, and you think well of it, stop yet and thank the God of these praying people, who controls the rain. Won't you accept this God as your God? Please let Him be your Saviour and your Lord.

SYNOPSIS: Dickey Date, skijumper extraordinary, attracts the first real interest of Hope Ress' life while she is in the midst of glving a house party at Lake Placid. Hope, slim in green leather coat, with her gold hair, bright under a green hat, as guickity atches Dick's attention, flours of riding and ice-fishing and talking result in the highest honor of a high school girl's life—an invitation from Dickey to the Barmouth from. She already has carried off the social honors at home; she is leader of her croud, renowned as the prettiest and richeat girl in town, and is easily the most popular. Her popularity, in fact, reduces school work to a minimum, worries her mother by its incessant progress and drives her sister Goody sullen with realousy. Hope's father spoils her, but does not carry this to the extent of admitting the social equality of Dickey's father.

PRESENT PERIOD WORSE THAN ONE A. LINCOLN KNEW

So Says Hoover In Radio Address On Civil War Executive

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(P)—The current period of stress is considered by President Hoover the most difficult in its pressure against the national foundations, since Lincoln's day.

He voiced this sentiment in his Lincoln birthday address last night, as-serting that forces invisible but potent in destruction now have engaged the nation upon a hundred fronts, requiring "just as greatly the moral courage, the organized action, the unity of strength and the sense of devotion in every community as in war.

"There are enduring principles," he said. "And national ideals to be pre served against the pressures of today.

But the president expressed confi dence in the power and courage of the people to triumph over national diffi-culties:

"They are rallying to their responsibilities. They are thus doing more than serving their immediate needs. They are buttressing the very foundations of self-government. They are defending the very principles of lib-erty and freedom. They are showing the patience and the steadfastness of

The president's speech, delivered from the study in the White House, in which Lincoln labored to preserve the union of the states, climaxed a national observance of his predecessor's birthday anniversary. Radio carried his words to Republican party gather-ings in New York and elsewhere over the nation. Speakers at these gather-ings added their eulogies. Many combined with them a vigorous call for the reelection of Herbert Hoover, praising him as a worthy successor to Lincoln in times of national difficulty. But Mr. Hoover pointedly rejected the anniversary as a political day:

"Ours is a government of political parties, Lincoln was the leader of a party whose traditions and tenets are precious to all those who adhere to it. But we do not celebrate the birth of Lincoln as a political event. Instead we celebrate his birthday as the mos significant for any American after Washington. In its celebration we find renewed courage and strength.

Panting and blowing, the Gyor finally came to bay. Then it was that the Horibs drew their circle closer, whirling dizzily around the gigantic creature. The ape-man, fascinated, watched the amazing scene, wondering how they ever hoped to overcome that ten tons of incarnate fury, wheeling this way and that. But presently a Horib darted in close to the Gyor at such speed that the mount and the rider were little more than a blur.

Says Society Deprived Him Of Means Of Earning His Living

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.-(AP)-Mrs. George Bratt, mother of four children and expecting a fifth, believes her husband did right in leaving the family in the hands of charity while he shifts for himself.

When the family was evicted from ts home yesterday for non-payment of rent, Bratt left, saying society had deprived him of a livelihood and now must care for his family, Mrs. Bratt said her husband was a graduate of Amherst, a former school teacher and for seven years was on the stage, appearing at one time at the Neighbor-hood playhouse, New York. Until recently he dealt in antique furniture. "I glory in his spunk," Mrs. Bratt said as she established herself in a home provided by charity.

Explaining his refusal to accept $25 from the Associated Charities for rent Bratt said:

"My reasons for refusing are two-fold. First, the clinic physician had certified that my wife was in no con-dition to be moved—nevertheless we were evicted. Secondly, I would have been forced to deceive the new landlord, hiding from him the fact that we were objects of charity and that the one month's rent was all he might ever expect to receive. I refused to be

Talks to Parents

A BAD BOX By Alice Judson Peale

A mother writes that her 6-year old son is in the first grade and that his teacher threatens to have him removed from the class.

The teacher has told him to behave himself and has punished him for continuing to be naughty. The principal has told the mother that she must either make her boy be good or take him out of school. At home he has been scolded, threatened, punished—with negligible effect. Only the mother has an inkling that there are methods yet untried for making her bad boy good. The child evidently is bright and physically active. Does his teacher keep him sufficiently occupied with new things or is he indulging in deviltry out of sheer boredom at the slow pace which he must travel with the class? A psychological test would clear up this point. Is he expected to sit in silence for long periods? No active child will stand for that without protest. In even the most conventional class room it would be possible to lessen the strain of inactivity by giving him little errands to do.

At home his mother can help by keeping him busy and happy with plenty of opportunity for satisfying play. She must decide at which points obedience is necessary and in-sist only upon these. She must re-Alexandria, 62; Baton Rouge, 60; and frain from nagging and scolding about unessentials.

Notice to Gas Consumers In West

Because of hasty removal from houses in flooded section, gas piping in houses in most instances was not properly shut off and protected by the householder. This has resulted in broken lines, leaky connections, and uncapped outlets which have allowed the water to enter into the house and service lines and has made these installations unsafe.

The Gas Company has assisted in every way possible in the inspection, capping and making tight and safe of house and service lines in the flooded

The Gas Company has nothing to do, and cannot have anything to do, with the inspection and correction of these conditions on the owners' premises. It is therefore necessary that the owner or tenant before moving back into any house in the flooded district have service and house lines gone over and any water removed from the lines, and proper repairs made to prevent leakage in order to make the use of the gas safe.

The Gas Company having no right on the premises, it will be necessary for the owner or tenant to have this work done by a licensed plumber or gas fitter, and gas will not be turned on to any house in the flooded district until proper inspection report is received from City Plumbing Inspector of West Monroe certifying that the gas piping and service line is tight and in serviceable condition for the safe delivery of gas.

This ruling shall apply to all gas piping from property line to and including all house lines and stove

Cotton To Reflect Fashions

Cotton is expected to play a leading role in the spring styles of 1932, from sports wear to evening gowns. That is the information that comes through the National Committee on New Uses for Cotton, composed of representatives of the department of agriculture, the department of commerce and the Cotton Textile Institute. The program is in harmony with the campaign conducted under the direction of Commissioner of Agriculture

Long famed for its practical virtues, such as durability, adaptability, comfort and economy, the great Southern fiber now commends itself even more tellingly to the sense of beauty and the eye of fashion. This is owing largely to the many new weaves, textures and patterns which resourceful art and skilled craftsmanship have developed and to which cotton so admirably lends itself.

The campaign of the national committee has had a most favorable response from manufacturers and designers in advance showings at Paris, Palm Beach and New York. Last year "Cotton Week" was featured in more than 14,000 retail stores throughout the country. The same enterprise, when repeated next May 16-21, is expected to arouse even wider and more fruitful interest. The Atlanta Journal comments on the report of the national committee for increased uses of cotton:

"In the matter of heavier commercial and domestic uses the committee finds an increasing demand for cotton in the retail packing of potatoes, nuts, citrus fruits, onions and apples. 'Five times as many consumer cotton bags for potatoes were used in 1931 as in 1930.' Fifty thousand bales were required in 1929 for cotton-picking sacks, sheets and tarpaulins. If all such had been made of cotton, they would have called for thirty-three thousand additional bales: and if the whole American cotton crop were wrapped in cotton bagging, instead of jute, a foreign product, some two hundred thousand bales would thus be consumed. 'Progress in encouraging the use of cotton foundation materials in the home manufacture of hooked rugs, and in the development of cotton garments for children was reported by the Bureau of Home Economics,' while the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported 'the development of a suitable cotton fabric for curing concrete, which has been tested in road construction and found to be fully satisfactory. It is stated that the use of this cotton fabric would result in a fifty per cent saving in the cost of covers, owing to its longer life."

These and many other results of scientific research and technical improvement indicate that cotton is suited to a wider diversity of uses than once was imagined. It remains only to bring these possibilities and advantages to the buying public's attention; and in the matter of styles this is mainly the province of the Southern women.

Appreciation

Business relations alone will never bring better understanding between the three Americas; there must be closer bonds of cultural understanding. There is certainly no foreign problem worthier of the best efforts of the United States than that of making friends with the South and Central American states, but our efforts as a nation have so far been confined to the business side.

What is the United States doing to interest the great body of South and Central Americans who do not care whether Uncle is a good or bad business man, but who do have a casual interest in science, literature, sport, painting and music? We must have done little to acquaint them with our aptitudes along these lines, yet if we looked around us we would see that this is one of the most effective ways of promoting international understanding and sympathy.

The only intimate knowledge the average American has of European culture and traditions is gleaned from the music, paintings, sculpture and literature of that continent. For centuries the United States has been doing business with Germany, England and France, yet we know those countries less by their business men and exports than by their music, literature and other art works.

Mutual understanding and sympathy between the Americas would be hastened were there passing constantly between them a stream of lecturers, musicians. painters, writers, actors, artists and scientists of every

Supremacy In The Air

It is a little surprising to find that there are citizens of France who consider their country's aeronautical equipment to be insufficient for national defense. It is usual-Iv assumed on this side of the Atlantic that France is far in the lead of the United States in aerial preparation. It is particularly in respect to speed that the French critics are quoting the superiority of America. A witness before the Chamber of Deputies referred to the air service between New York and Washington as maintaining an average of 185 miles an hour. This figure does not fit the air-line schedules, but it is a fact that the splendid development of commercial aviation in this country is something of a model and marvel to the Other testimony at the hearings mentioned the load capacities of German aircraft and the high military efficiency of England's air force. It is apparent, indeed, that the nations have specialized to some degree in their aviation programs. And it may be said with some confidence that although the United States has not yet gone very far in developing its air forces, the unusual efficiency of commercial operations in this country represents a reserve strength which may some day prove immensely important to our national safety.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

SOLVENLY SENSES

If we could speak the language of animals we would not need to caution a cat to use her ears, or a setter dog to use his nose.

In the animal kingdom the solvenly use of the senses means trouble, or death, often both. The other day I saw a little boy creeping up to squirrel, intent on capturing him.

The squirrel's face was turned in the other direction, but his keen little bulging eye was watching every movement of the child, and just as a hand was thrust out to seize him he made a long leap, landed in the lower branches of a willow tree, and sat there volubly experssing his contempt for clumsy little boys.

Doubtless when our ancestors were living in caves their senses were far more acute than they are now, possibly as sharp as those of the animals they hunted, and that hunted them in return.

But since we have been freed from the necessity of using our eyes and ears intensively, and making records in our minds of the messages they bring, we are getting

It is quite possible, as every schoolboy knows, to read page after page of a lesson book, following every line and paragraph, and never taking in or remembering a single word.

I have heard in a courtroom two perfectly honest witnesses testify about an incident both had seen, and tell directly conflicting stories about what occurred.

In the case of normal people the eyes and ears are as acute as they need be, and they function without any instruction on the part of their owners.

They bring in the news of what is going on, but after the brain receives it, that is as far as it goes. I speak of the senses as slovenly because they consist as much of the parts of the brain which receive them as they do of the organs of observation. And if the receiving office is not open and alert, nothing that comes in will go so far as to get on the file for use another day.

In all animals the faculty of observation is acute, with the single exception of man

But men can, and many of them do, keep theirs on the If they are deeply interested in what is going on, they hear and see and remember. But only a few are interested enough in anything short of a fire or a street fight to keep the reporting going on, and to put the messages on file. And that is a reason for a great many failures.

MILLION FEDERAL JOB-HOLDERS

(Editorial from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat) Figures on the number of persons who derive their livelihood from the eneral government and their ratio to total population have seldom been printed twice alike. That, in fact, no reliable data existed on the subject now appears, though the White House, as well as Congress, has had considerable curiosity on the subject.

Repeated requests have now brought from the Budget Bureau pay-roll ummaries running into big totals, and they ought to be reliable, in as much as it is the Budget Bureau that passes on the money for meeting the manifold and closely written pay rolls. It is evident however, that even these carefully prepared summaries do not include Congressmen and perhaps not the pay rolls of numerous congressional appointees and incidental employe expenses entering into the $25,000,000 a year the federal legislative department

The pay rollers reported by the bureau number 1,023,373. Of these, 345,351 eceive less than $1000 a year each, the total paid them being $154,367,000. The total on pay rolls include 732,460 persons in civilian service and 290.913 in the twin branches of the uniformed defensive service. Only thirty-two persons are paid at the rate of $15,000 a year each, and 134 receive $10,000 or more, exclusive of 531 Congressmen, whose pay and perquis something in excess of that sum. Those interested may easily calculate the ratio to total population of 122,775,046, which ratio, of course would be greatly increased by including state, city and other local pay rollers.

What was meant by "Billion Dollar Congress," phrase of reproach in a campaign of some years ago, was that a single Congress, in two years, spent $1,000,000,000 in public money, including postal receipts. How ready Congressmen are to create new jobs on any excuse, how eager many are to take them and how few leave them, except under compulsion, appears from the fact that in each single year, for meeting pay rolls alone, Congress now spends 33 per cent more than the gross total its stigmatized predecessor of that campaign spent, or $1,315,690,467, the total of all pay rolls of all classes. If the pay of many is small, it is sure, and, with some exceptions, the

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 13 .- | Sigmund, was world's champion, I The best tip off on what sort of ventured to ask why he, and not the sport ski-jumping is comes from a little known Birger should be his careful reading of the birth certificates of its champions.

Birger Ruud, the new champion, was born in 1912. The man who ran him a whistling second and established a new mark for the intervales jump in doing so, Hans Beck, was born the same year. Alfred Anderson, 1925 Olympic champion, barely was 20 when he out-jumped the classiest field of them all. And so it goes.

As in most sports the brashness of outh is looked upon as a handicap, something to get rid of as soon as possible. But not so with ski-jumpng.
A ski-jumper, the experts say, is the age where a man has his full strength but still is a little shy on

It is the age of dare-devil try, irresponsibility and daring. It is the age where a man's love for "showing off" outweighs his love for discretion. Birger Ruud's victory yesterday was forecast by a veteran Norwe-Knowing that Birger's brother, "Because," replied the Norwegian,

"The rain and warm weather have made the jump very dangerous, and Birger is younger than Sigmund. Sigmund and the other older jumpers will take one look at that soft, skiddish landing slope and immediately become discreet. The youngsters, lacking sense, will take off just as if the hill was in perfect shape."

The youngsters, however, are not entirely immune from fear. Ever the most daring ones like Ruud and Beck get, a cold, clammy, feeling when they look down the chute that is soon to hurl them out into great handfuls of nothing. If you'll notice, ski-jumpers, young ones, middle aged ones and old ones, don't hesitate very long at the top. They don't dare. They'll back down if they do.

Despite its danger, ski-jumping furnishes few serious accidents. The reason for this is not hard to figure out. Your novice skier just doesn't try the big jumps. He confines his activities to jumps off the front porch. He leaves the business of jumping off tops of mountains to ex-

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(P)—Stocks zoomed upward in one of the most spectacular rebounds of the past two

The abrupt upturn which greeted the proposal to increase the flexibility of the federal reserve system on Thursday, was resumed at a swifter pace after yesterday's holiday, as buy-ing orders swept into the market, driving the bears into a little panic all of their own.

Union Pacific made the extreme upsurge of 18 1-2 points, and closed up 12. American Telephone got up 15 3-4, and closed with a net gain of 14 1-2. Santa Fe rose 12 1-2, and closed up 9 3-4. U. S. Steel closed up 5 to 7 advanced but moderately, however, it was found necessary to omit the volume of individual transactions to keep with transactions for a time. The volume fell off in the last few minutes, however, as the list eased off from the days best prices.

city in the interest of evangelism. His past has been replete with crime but he has been doing a remarkable work of reform ever since he saw a new light a few years ago in Auburn Prison where he was serving a term. He was born in a Christian home in Forrington, Conn., he states and wandered to New York as a young man where he fell in with professional gamblers. He was sentenced in 1927 to serve a term in Auburn for the operation of a confidence game in Rochester N. Y. When in prison he experienced a conversion and was taken into the Nazarene church later being authorized to preach. He was permitted to hold Bible classes and preach to the men in the penitentiary during the last few months of his prison term. He was discharged from prison in 1930. and has traveled from prison to prison and from jail to jail delivering a stirring message to the men

Physical torture inflicted upon the men and what the evangelist terms "faulty justice," are given as the chief causes of the spread of anarchy and Bolshevism in this country. "The men are all too often beaten and abused until they become hardened against all fellow men," he says, when they learn of a rich man who has committed serious crimes left off with a trival sentence of a few days or months and when a poor man who has committed a less serious offense, is given a stiff sentence, they become hardened. They see relief only through anarchy."

It is to show the men that there is only one way and that the straight and narrow way that forms the basis of correct living, that Reverend Heb-erle is touring the land. He made talks at both jails here and will visit the Louisiana Training Institute Sun-He was in Auburn when two seriou

JENA, Feb. 13.-(Special)-Parish Agent L. O. Sumrall has been appointed parish chairman of the parish contribution committee, which will work in connection with the parish chapter of the Red Cross in collecting and distributing provisions to needy families. The plan is to ask farmers to donate farm products, which will be delivered by local chairmen to two central distributing depots, one at Olla and one at Jena People to receive these provisions will have to file regular applications to be passed by the Red Cross committee, B. E. Blake will have charge of the Olla depot, and Lloyd Whatley will have charge of the Jena station The first collection of provisions is planned for Saturday of this week and Monday of next week, and the issuance of provisions from these storehouses will begin as soon as the committee can pass on applications. Most of those eligible for help are water refugees and mill workers who are destitute because high waters have flooded the woodlands, causing the mills to shut down.

JUDGE MOORE TO TALK A talk by Judge Decker Moore will be a feature of the meeting of the West Monroe Methodist Women's Missionary Society next Tuesday. The for planting, some having planted meeting is to be held at the church and all members are expected to atl tend.

BIG DRIVE WILL COME NEXT WEEK

(Copyright 1932, by the Associated Press) TOKYO, Feb. 13.—(P)—The Japanese military forces, strengthened by a new division of reinforcement troops, will open their big drive upon the Chinese at Shanghai next week, it was stated in government circles today, unless a new proposal for the creation of a neutral zone around the city and the withdrawal of Chinese troops is accepted.

The proposal will be made to the France, who are now in Shanghai. They will be asked to request the Chinese to withdraw to permit the establishment of the neutral zone. If they decline to make the request, it was said officially, the Japanese themselves will demand the withdrawal of the Chinese within a nome as they did in former years. In former years, pulpit, press and platform had much to say about these young citizens leaving family hearths and striking out on the road of life. The reason why young people left their homes is another story. diplomatic representatives of the This story deals with the reason why United States, Great Britain and boys and girls of Monroe, West Monroe and Ouachita Parish remain at home. These boys and girls remain home because they are attending school-and liking it.

The Ouachita Parish and Monroe city school systems have gained recognition among leading educational systems of the South. High schools of the system have many extra curricula activities which make school attendance very interesting, such as athletics, publications, dramatics, debating vocal training, including glee clubs and quartets, societies formed for the purpose of furthering interesting study of various subjects, (French club, Latin club, etc.), miscellaneous social groups.

The above are stereotyped and well known activities. Interesting activities of one of the schools of the local systems, which are seldom mentioned in print, are activities of the commerce, home economics and manual training departments of the Quachita Parish High School.
